Police, Fire Eligibility Extended To Countians

Circleville city council Tuesday made it possible for the safety department to hire any Pickaway County resident as a city fireman or policeman.

The city fathers passed an ordinance which not only made this possible, but also changed the age limits for men eligible to advance to the post of chief of police or chief of the fire department.

Prior to passage of the bill the age limits were 24 and 40 for persons applying for the posts. The new law sets the age bracket at 24 and 64.

The ordinance went through without discussion, although earlier in the meeting the city fathers issued informal instructions to City Solicitor George Gerhardt to find out if an ordinance can be passed requiring the chiefs of either department to retire at age 65.

It was explained that such an ordinance would not be aimed at Police Chief McCrady, since it could not be made retroactive. The little Irish cop has been a target of council jibes for many months.

Gerhardt said he would obtain the requested information and have it ready for next meeting of council.

The city fathers also passed seven other ordinances, listened to second reading of an eighth. The bills were as follows:

1. A bill consolidating the positions of cashier of the water and sewage departments and file clerk for the sewage department. Salary for the consolidated position was set at $2,400 a year, payable at $200 per month.

2. An ordinance appropriating $275 from the general fund to the water department for purchase of two fire hydrants.

Following passage of this bill, Councilman George Crites remarked that a news story recently appearing in a Columbus newspaper stating that Circleville does not have enough water to sprinkle its lawns was erroneous. "We have plenty of water here for everybody," said Crites.

3. A bill appropriating $250 from the general fund to the health department fund for milk inspection.

4. An ordinance appropriating $325 for purchase of traffic lights.

5. A bill appropriating $400 from the waterworks operating fund to the maintenance and chemical fund.

6. An ordinance appropriating $900 from the waterworks operating fund to a fund for fuel and power.

7. A bill appropriating $300 from the waterworks operating fund to the meter maintenance fund.

Second reading was given an ordinance calling for the establishment of zones in Circleville. The bill was read by title only.

Hayward-Court Traffic Signal OK'd By Council

Circleville city council Tuesday voted to erect a school traffic light at the intersection of Hayward avenue and North Court street.

But the decision was not made without considerable legislative oratory.

The matter was precipitated by the reading of a letter from Circleville board of education which pointed out "the marked traffic hazard to elementary school children in crossing North Court street in order to reach the new Atwater school building."

The letter requested council to place a traffic light at the intersections of Seyfert avenue and North Court street, North Pickaway street and Northridge Road, and Atwater avenue and Northridge Road.

The communication further stated that "the board has determined to provide a man who might be deputized as a special policeman, for such period as might be necessary, to watch and direct the children in crossing Court street at Seyfert avenue, going to and from school."

It said the board "has also expressed its willingness, insofar as legally possible for them to do so, to help defray the expense of the installation of the new traffic lights."

Councilman Walden Reichelderfer punctuated the closing paragraphs of the letter by declaring:

"I realize the need for traffic lights and traffic control to protect school children, but it seems to me that this is going overboard. I just can't see the necessity for putting traffic lights at North Pickaway street and Northridge Road and at Atwater avenue and Northridge Road."

These two intersections are less than one-half block apart. Councilman Boyd Horn rose to his feet. "I move," he said,

"that a light be placed at Hayward."

"Second," said Reichelderfer. That met with general approval, but brought up another problem—how long was the light to remain on, and how was it to be controlled?

Some legislators thought the light should be controlled by a clock device that would turn the light on at the intervals when children are going to and from school. Others thought the light could be turned on and off by a policeman.

Horn was among those subscribing to the latter school of thought. And when Councilman Ray Cook proposed an amendment to Horn's motion, changing it to authorize the safety director to have a clock device installed, Horn protested.

"That amendment is all right in a way, and in another way it isn't," he said. "It won't hurt to have a policeman go out and check traffic. But I say leave the traffic light on for 12 hours. That will put a stop to that race-track out there."

President of Council Ben Gordon directed a question at Reichelderfer.

"Do you want to withdraw your second?" he asked. "I withdraw it," said Reichelderfer.

Horn, face tinged with red, stared at the council boss. "That's shutting the door right square in my face," he snapped. Reichelderfer then made a motion that a light be placed at Hayward avenue as soon as possible and that a timing device be added as soon as it can be obtained.

Except for a suggestion that Service Director John Neuding be instructed to "smear up the street" with yellow painted signs cautioning motorists to go slow, that was the end of it. Vote on the motion was unanimously in favor.

City Protests Proposed Telephone Rate Increase

Circleville city council Tuesday adopted a resolution protesting a requested increase in telephone rates in the city.

The request for rate increases has been filed with the Ohio Public Utilities Commission by the Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co.

The resolution was written by City Solicitor George Gerhardt, who explained that at present it is the only action the city can take in an attempt to forestall the rate hike.

Gerhardt said PUCO headquarters in Columbus informed him of the steps involved.

"First," he said, "the company has to file an application with the PUCO, requesting permission to increase the rates. They have done this."

"Then the commission turns the application over to its engineers for study. Quality of the service that the company furnishes does not enter into the engineers' study of the need for a rate increase. An objection to the service calls for a separate complaint to be filed."

"This would be a formal application proving that the service is not good."

"It would be given separate study by the commission, and if found valid, would result in a ruling which the company would be bound to follow."

With regard to the telephone company's request for a rate increase, Gerhardt said that after a 30-day waiting period prescribed by law, a public hearing on the matter will be held.

"I will attend that meeting," he said.

The resolution adopted by council says in part:

"Council... on behalf of its citizens wished to protest the increase in telephone rates in this city for the reason that said telephone company does not and has not in the last year installed telephones in this community in accordance with the needs (their report shows only 10 new phones on rural lines in one year's time.)"

"In Exhibit C3 they state that the use of semi-public telephones with the new rate will double their income from this exchange alone."

"Further, that this increase for this exchange will amount to $51,643.80."

"Council does not feel, in view of their (the phone company's) over-age equipment... their service and their inability or negligence in furnishing new phones and other service that they are entitled to any increase or that their earnings should be practically doubled."

Mac Suicide Is Considered

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 5.—Gen. Douglas MacArthur's aide for 15 years said today the general was ready to commit suicide rather than be captured by the Japanese on Corregidor.

Writing in the current issue of the Saturday Evening Post, Col. Sid Huff, said that MacArthur turned to him during the Bataan campaign of early 1942 and showed him a pistol which belonged to his father. The general was quoted as saying:

"They will never take me alive, Sid."

Britain Gets Ultimatum

Iran Says Oil Talks Must Resume

TEHERAN, Sept. 6.—The Iranian government decided today on a 15-day ultimatum to Great Britain to resume oil nationalization discussions and accused Britain of a "plot" to overthrow Premier Mohammed Mossadegh.

The premier himself, in a speech to the Iranian senate, said that if the British do not agree to renew the discussions, British technicians employed at the huge Abadan oil refinery will be expelled from Iran.

Other foreign experts, presumably Russian or Swiss, will be called in. More than 1,000 applications for employment at the refinery already have been received.

In London, a British Foreign Office spokesman said that Britain is awaiting official receipt of Mossadegh's ultimatum before making any comment beyond the fact that the government is "standing pat" on its attitude. This is that Britain is willing to reopen discussions on condition that new proposals are received from Tehran.

Immediately following Mossadegh's speech in the senate, Vice-Premier Hussein Fatemi made his accusation of a British "plot." He said that Britain plans to "sit on the fence" until Mossadegh fell from power.

Mossadegh announced his plan for an ultimatum to the senate which gave him a resounding vote of confidence, supporting the most dangerous official step yet taken in the smouldering dispute over Iran's nationalization of the property of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co.

He will present the ultimatum to the majlis, or lower house, tomorrow, then will dispatch it to London.

The step is doubly ominous in the light of a British cabinet announcement of Aug. 23 which said force would be used if necessary to keep the Abadan refinery—the world's largest—in British hands.

$118,069 Fund Given By State To Local Schools

Circleville and Pickaway County schools have received a total of $118,069.42 in state foundation aid monies in the third quarterly settlement.

The state aid monies are the first paid into the local systems under provisions of the recently passed House Bill 48, which provides for teacher pay minimums.

Increases in both distributions were noticed in the settlements. Circleville's increase over its previous settlements set at about $6,000.

City schools received a total of $34,896.48 of the state aid settlement monies, while the 17 county schools divided a total of $83,172.94.

Scioto Township received the largest slice of the county foundation monies with a total settlement of $9,889.21, while Salt Creek was second with $9,682.10.

Payments made to the other schools in the county system were: Ashville, $7,820.16; Darby, $7,232.72; Williamsport, $7,120.38; Harrison, $1,612.51; Jackson, $4,487.88; Madison, $1,174.84; Monroe, $4,974.61; Muhlberg, $1,512.08; New Holland, $6,740.28; Atlanta, $4,629.74; Pickaway, $3,067.67; Walnut, $7,641.85; Washington, $3,915.69; and Wayne, $1,471.22.

REDS LOSE FIRST TRY TO FOUL UP PARLEY

CALIFORNIA DEMOCRAT SAYS:

'Thought I Heard (Truman's) Hat Drop Into The Ring'

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5.—President Truman flew to his Missouri home today from the Japanese peace conference, with his candidacy for reelection in 1952 believed by some to be a certainty.

The President's airplane, Independence, was airborne from San Francisco airport at 9:04 a. m. (EST).

Political observers were convinced Mr. Truman had not only opened the treaty meeting while in San Francisco, but had also fired the opening gun in a race to return to the White House for another four-year term.

Officially, the President still remained silent on the big question of his political intentions.

But goggle-eyed California Democrats, who yesterday heard him swing out with a tub-thumping, outright political speech of the type he used effectively in his 1948 "whistle-stop" campaign, were convinced it was a presidential candidate talking.

One observer remarked as he left the Democratic luncheon rally: "I thought I heard a hat drop into the ring."

For one breathless moment during his attack on "political mossbacks," "professional antis" and "pullbacks," the President came within an inch of a flat announcement of his candidacy. Or at least those who heard him thought so.

After charging that "special interests" were trying to wreck the country's economy and that "reactionaries and isolationists" were seeking to torpedo the defense program, Mr. Truman paused and said:

"Next year, 1952..."

The pause lengthened and the several hundred Democrats leaped to their feet and cheered.

The President smiled impishly, and when the shouting died down continued:

"You interrupted me!—next year, 1952—that is an election year. We are going to elect a President next year, and that means that we are going to have the opportunity to see that this country stays in the right path."

"I don't know who the Democratic candidates will be next year, but I do know this: They will be fighters for peace they will understand what it takes to make America strong, they will fight for all the people—not just a few."

"You won't be working for the Democratic Party alone, you will be working for the people of the United States, and you will be working for world peace."

In what sounded as if it might be a Truman platform for 1952, the President declared:

"I intend to keep on fighting for what I think is right."

"I intend to keep on fighting for a strong armed force—Army, Navy, Airforce—for a military policy for the United States that will keep the peace. And that is what we have got to have, if we expect to keep the peace."

"I intend to keep right on fighting for the means to join with our allies in proper arrangements for our own common defense against all aggressors."

"I intend to keep right on fighting to build an economically strong country at home—one in which the people will get the benefit."

Jap Treaty Aides Vote Against Mao

Russia's Gromyko Defeated, 49-3

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5.—Russia was defeated today by a vote of 49 to 3 in its initial fight to filibuster the Japanese peace treaty conference.

The vote came after Russia's Andrei Gromyko threw the treaty conference into a fight at its opening business session by demanding admission of Mao Tse-tung's Communist China.

He was immediately ruled out of order by Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

The Russian deputy foreign minister challenged the ruling of Acheson, temporary chairman of the parley, and called upon the assembled delegations of 52 nations to "take a decision immediately" on the question of inviting Red China to the proceedings.

Acheson thereupon called for a vote of the delegations on his ruling that the question of China's admission was out of order and that a motion to adopt rules of procedure was up for discussion.

AT THAT POINT, Gromyko, without even being recognized by the chairman, seized the rostrum and dramatically declared:

"In such a case, I protest the ruling."

He threatened that "the Soviet delegation will continue to raise this question" of Communist Chinese participation in the conclusion of a peace pact with Japan.

Gromyko insisted on a vote upon his motion before the conference takes any other action.

His motion to invite Red China was seconded by Czechoslovakia's woman deputy foreign minister, Dr. Gertrude Sekanova. The delegates from Czechoslovakia and Poland stood by Gromyko as he battled for what he called the "right" of delegates to decide on the disputed point of order.

Poland's chief delegate, Stefan Wierblowski, then asked for the floor and Acheson ruled he would grant him five minutes to speak.

The Polish emissary began by declaring: "I resent that ruling. Delegates should not be limited in the time they have to speak."

Wierblowski backed Gromyko's demand that Red China be summoned to the conference.

Wierblowski kept talking until his five minutes were up, at which point he was cut off by Chairman Acheson who recognized Britain's chief delegate, Kenneth Younger.

The Pole remained at the rostrum microphone, protesting Acheson's ruling.

Three times Acheson told Wierblowski: "The delegate will please take his seat."

FINALLY, Wierblowski sat down and Younger, representative of a government which has recognized the Chinese Red regime, upheld the motion to discuss rules of procedure.

It was then that the 49-3 vote temporarily silenced the Reds.

Acheson had launched the Japanese peace conference on a hectic race toward the hoped-for Sunday windup in defiance of a Russian warning it will last a month.

Delegates from 52 nations were in the red-plush seats in the edifice where UN was born six years ago. Acheson squared off for his early bout with Gromyko.

The Russian predicted at a reception here last night that the conference would last "at least a month."

The reception followed President Truman's keynote address opening the conference.

The stern-visaged Soviet plenipotentiary made it plain last night that he intends to wage a fight. At a reception, during

HAYWARD PROJECT EYED

Higher City Sewer Rates Pondered By Councilmen

Circleville residents may soon find themselves paying higher sewage rates.

That was put forth in city council Tuesday night as a solution to the problem of financing a sanitary sewer to drain the northeast end of the city.

The matter came up when a group of Hayward avenue citizens asked council what it intended to do about the situation.

The possibility of raising the rates to obtain the funds was voiced timorously by Councilman George Crites, who added that "if we do that we'll run into a lot of trouble."

Councilman E. L. Montgomery saw it as a good idea. "Why not raise the rates?" he boomed.

Sewage Department Manager Ervin Leist explained that in order to raise the necessary funds the sewage rates would have to be hiked enough to bring in an additional $3,000 or $4,000 a year.

CRITES SHOOK his head. "We shouldn't make the people who use the sewers pay for what will amount to a civic improvement," he protested.

Montgomery cut in with: "These people (Hayward avenue residents) have paid their taxes to provide sewers for the rest of the city. There's nothing wrong, as I see it, with raising the sewer rates and letting the whole darn town pay for the new sewer."

The new sewer would parallel the Norfolk and Western Railway tracks, eventually emptying into a large sewer line on Main street.

It was explained that the new line would relieve the load on the North Court street sewer, which according to Service Director John Neuding, is already overloaded. Cost of the sewer would be about $60,000, including a lift station.

Upshot of Tuesday night's discussion.

Commie Troops Fall Back Under Allied Attacks

TOKYO, Sept. 5.—Communist troops on the east-central Korean front fell back tonight under a devastating rain of Allied artillery fire and UN ground forces captured important high ground without firing a shot.

Front dispatches said that the Allied troops including the American Second Division won the crest of "Bloody Ridge" after 18 days of almost constant hand-to-hand fighting with fanatical Reds.

Front line officers said the Red defenders of the hill absorbed 390,000 rounds of Allied artillery during 18 days of fighting before they finally withdrew.

The Red forces left behind numerous North Korean soldiers—wounded and half-starved. These enemy casualties were taken without a struggle by Allied troops and told questioners the main Red defending force withdrew this evening under cover of darkness.

There was little hope seen, meanwhile, of a quick resumption of case-fire talks which were broken off two weeks ago by the Reds.

COMMUNIST TRUCE delegates charged that an Allied plane had bombed the Kaesong cease-fire zone in violation of an agreement with the UN. This charge—and subsequent ones—were denied by UN headquarters.

General Ridgway, the UN commander, told the Reds in official communications Tuesday that their charges were unjustified and once again left it up to them to decide whether they want peace or all-out war in Korea.

Some UN observers expressed the belief that the Reds were intent upon continuing their delaying tactics in the cease-fire parley until the conclusion of the Japanese peace treaty conference in San Francisco.

The truce talk issue has boiled down to a "propaganda" war between both sides. Ridgway steadfastly denied the Red charges of violations of the Kaesong truce zone and the Communists, in turn, merely brought up new charges or claimed Ridgway's answers to their complaints were "unsatisfactory."

Mac Suicide Is Considered

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 5.—Gen. Douglas MacArthur's aide for 15 years said today the general was ready to commit suicide rather than be captured by the Japanese on Corregidor.

Writing in the current issue of the Saturday Evening Post, Col. Sid Huff, said that MacArthur turned to him during the Bataan campaign of early 1942 and showed him a pistol which belonged to his father. The general was quoted as saying:

"They will never take me alive, Sid."

CALIFORNIA DEMOCRAT SAYS:

'Thought I Heard (Truman's) Hat Drop Into The Ring'

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5.—President Truman flew to his Missouri home today from the Japanese peace conference, with his candidacy for reelection in 1952 believed by some to be a certainty.

The President's airplane, Independence, was airborne from San Francisco airport at 9:04 a. m. (EST).

Political observers were convinced Mr. Truman had not only opened the treaty meeting while in San Francisco, but had also fired the opening gun in a race to return to the White House for another four-year term.

Officially, the President still remained silent on the big question of his political intentions.

But goggle-eyed California Democrats, who yesterday heard him swing out with a tub-thumping, outright political speech of the type he used effectively in his 1948 "whistle-stop" campaign, were convinced it was a presidential candidate talking.

One observer remarked as he left the Democratic luncheon rally: "I thought I heard a hat drop into the ring."

For one breathless moment during his attack on "political mossbacks," "professional anti's" and "pullbacks," the President came within an inch of a flat announcement of his candidacy. Or at least those who heard him thought so.

After charging that "special interests" were trying to wreck the country's economy and that "reactionaries and isolationists" were seeking to torpedo the defense program, Mr. Truman paused and said:

"Next year, 1952... The pause lengthened and the several hundred Democrats leaped to their feet and cheered."

The President smiled impishly, and when the shouting died down continued:

"You interrupted me!—next year, 1952—that is an election year. We are going to elect a President next year, and that means that we are going to have the opportunity to see that this country stays in the right path. "I don't know who the Democratic candidates will be next year, but I do know this: They will be fighters for peace they will understand what it takes to make America strong, they will fight for all the people—not just a few.

"You won't be working for the Democratic Party alone, you will be working for the people of the United States, and you will be working for world peace."

In what sounded as if it might be a Truman platform for 1952, the President declared:

"I intend to keep on fighting for what I think is right. "I intend to keep on fighting for a strong armed force—Army, Navy, Airforce—for a military policy for the United States that will keep the peace. And that is what we have got to have, if we expect to keep the peace."

"I intend to keep right on fighting for the means to join with our allies in proper arrangements for our own common defense against all aggressors."

"I intend to keep right on fighting to build an economically strong country at home—one in which the people will get the benefit."

HAYWARD PROJECT EYED

Higher City Sewer Rates Pondered By Councilmen

Circleville residents may soon find themselves paying higher sewer rates.

That was put forth in city council Tuesday night as a solution to the problem of financing a sanitary sewer to drain the northeast end of the city.

The matter came up when a group of Hayward avenue citizens asked council what it intended to do about the situation.

The possibility of raising the rates to obtain the funds was voiced timorously by Councilman George Crites, who added that "if we do that we'll run into a lot of trouble."

Councilman E. L. Montgomery saw it as a good idea. "Why not raise the rates?" he boomed.

Sewage Department Manager Ervin Leist explained that in order to raise the necessary funds the sewerage rates would have to be hiked enough to bring in an additional $3,000 or $4,000 a year.

CRITES SHOOK his head. "We shouldn't make the people who use the sewers pay for what will amount to a civic improvement," he protested.

Montgomery cut in with: "These people (Hayward avenue residents) have paid their taxes to provide sewers for the rest of the city. There's nothing wrong, as I see it, with raising the sewer rates and letting the whole darn town pay for the new sewer."

The new sewer would parallel the Norfolk and Western Railway tracks, eventually emptying into a large sewer line on Main street.

It was explained that the new line would relieve the load on the North Court street sewer, which according to Service Director John Neuding, is already overloaded. Cost of the sewer would be about $60,000, including a lift station.

Upshot of Tuesday night's discussion was that Leist was instructed to obtain figures showing how much sewerage rates would have to be increased in order to provide funds to construct the sewer.

The money would be raised by selling bonds, with the revenue from the increased sewerage rates being used to pay them off over a 25-year period.

Leist promised to have the figures ready for next meeting of council.

Caldwell was appointed to the Circleville force Jan. 1. His resignation will become effective Sept. 23, although he will leave the force Sept. 4 on eight-day vacation.

The policeman is to begin a training course with the state wildlife division Sept. 16 near Port Clinton. The special training course lasts 90 days.

Officers Carl Thompson and Harold Green left Sunday for a similar training program near Camp Perry. Resignation of the three new officers has cut the city force down to five regular policemen and the chief.

Another City Policeman Turns In Resignation

Circleville's police department has lost another of its younger patrolmen to the Ohio Department of Natural Resources.

He is Orville Caldwell, who submitted his resignation to Safety Director Clyde Leist Wednesday.

Caldwell was appointed to the Circleville force Jan. 1. His resignation will become effective Sept. 23, although he will leave the force Sept. 4 on eight-day vacation.

4 Drunk Drivers Lose Rights

Four men—two of them from Circleville—were deprived of their driving rights in Pickaway County common pleas court Wednesday after pleading guilty to accusations of drunken driving.

Major Patterson, 49, of Columbus lost his driving license for six months and was fined $10 and costs. He was arrested last weekend on North Court street by Circleville police.

Attlee Runion, 19, of Detroit; Albert Crosby, 40, of 434 East Union street; and Henry Eldon Wilkes, 27, of 147 Logan street each was fined $10 and costs, deprived of driving rights for one year and sentenced to 30 days in Pickaway jail. The jail terms were suspended, however.

Circleville Police Chief William McCrady no longer has an office all to himself.

City council made the change Tuesday night when it passed the ordinance giving the city health department permission to use the room for work connected with milk inspection.

The office is on the first floor of City Hall.

Health Commissioner C. O. Leist explained that only part of the office will be used by the milk inspector.

Jap Treaty Aides Vote Against Mao

Russia's Gromyko Defeated, 49-3

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5.—Russia was defeated today by a vote of 49 to 3 in its initial fight to filibuster the Japanese peace treaty conference.

The vote came after Russia's Andrei Gromyko threw the treaty conference into a fight at its opening business session by demanding admission of Mao Tse-tung's Communist China.

He was immediately ruled out of order by Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

The Russian deputy foreign minister challenged the ruling of Acheson, temporary chairman of the parley, and called upon the assembled delegations of 52 nations to "take a decision immediately" on the question of inviting Red China to the proceedings.

Acheson thereupon called for a vote of the delegations on his ruling that the question of China's admission was out of order and that a motion to adopt rules of procedure was up for discussion.

AT THAT POINT, Gromyko, without even being recognized by the chairman, seized the rostrum and dramatically declared:

"In such a case, I protest the ruling."

He threatened that "the Soviet delegation will continue to raise this question" of Communist Chinese participation in the conclusion of a peace pact with Japan.

Gromyko insisted on a vote upon his motion before the conference takes any other action. His motion to invite Red China was seconded by Czechoslovakia's woman deputy foreign minister, Dr. Gertrude Sekanova. The delegates from Czechoslovakia and Poland stood by Gromyko as he battled for what he called the "right" of delegates to decide on the disputed point of order.

Poland's chief delegate, Stefan Wierbowski, then asked for the floor and Acheson ruled he would grant him five minutes to speak.

The Polish emissary began by declaring:

"I resent that ruling. Delegates should not be limited in the time they have to speak."

Wierbowski backed Gromyko's demand that Red China be summoned to the conference.

Wierbowski kept talking until his five minutes were up, at which point he was cut off by Chairman Acheson who recognized Britain's chief delegate, Kenneth Younger.

The Pole remained at the rostrum microphone, protesting Acheson's ruling.

Three times Acheson told Wierbowski:

"The delegate will please take his seat."

FINALLY, Wierbowski sat down and Younger, representative of a government which has recognized the Chinese Red regime, upheld the motion to discuss rules of procedure.

It was then that the 49-3 vote temporarily silenced the Reds.

Acheson had launched the Japanese peace conference on a hectic race toward the hoped-for Sunday windup in defiance of a Russian warning it will last a month.

Delegates from 52 nations were in the red-plush seats in the edifice where UN was born six years ago. Acheson squared off for his early bout with Gromyko.

The Russian predicted at a reception here last night that the conference would last "at least a month."

The reception followed President Truman's keynote address opening the conference.

The stern-visaged Soviet plenipotentiary made it plain last night that he intends to wage a fight. At a reception, during which he shook hands perfunctorily with President Truman and other guests, Gromyko asked Britain's Minister of State Kenneth Younger in a private conversation:

"How long, in your opinion, will this conference last?"

"It should be over by the end of the week," replied the British delegation chief, then boldly confronted the Soviet official with the question:

"How long, Mr. Gromyko, do you think we will be here?"

"At least a month!" was the startling answer from the 42-year-old Russian representative.

Blinking in amazement, Younger, who had previously said he plans to leave San Francisco Monday night at the latest, remarked:

"That seems rather a long time."

"TIME IS NOT important," Gromyko countered. "What is important is what we are going to accomplish here."

The significant chat between Gromyko and Younger took place in a side room of the Palace Hotel garden terrace where the United States tendered the reception to delegates immediately after the formal launching of the conference with Mr. Truman's keynote speech.

As Gromyko was about to leave the social affair, Philippine Foreign Secretary Carlos P. Romulo asked him jocularly: "When are you going to start the big fight?"

"That depends on what you mean by fight," the Russian answered with a straight face. "I am ready for it—what you call a fight—when I think the right moment has come."

Reporters buttonholed Gromyko as he left the garden terrace, urging him to reveal whether he intends to sign the Japanese peace pact. He told them:

"I have nothing to say just yet about that. We shall see later."

Mr. Truman, meanwhile, made a few impromptu remarks to the diplomats at the reception.

"When we have concluded this conference," he said, "we shall have taken a step forward toward peace."

AND PREVIOUSLY, the chief executive raised the curtain on the historic conference aimed to end the state of war with Japan and with a keynote address challenged Russia to demonstrate whether it seeks peace or war.

To the assembled delegates sitting tense and silent on the red plush seats of the opera house, including Gromyko, Mr. Truman said the proposed treaty with Japan "threw more than talk of peace; it offers action for peace."

From the rostrum where the United Nations was born and dedicated six years ago, the President declared:

"This conference will show, therefore, who seeks to make peace and who seeks to prevent it; who wishes to put an end to war and who wishes to continue it."

The 26-minute address, televised across the United States in the first coast-to-coast hookup, was punctuated repeatedly by outbursts of applause.

Gromyko sat poker-faced through the entire speech only 50 feet away from the President. Once or twice he turned his head slightly to look at Mr. Truman. He did not applaud him. On the other hand, the chief executive kept his attention riveted on delivery of his speech and did not glance in Gromyko's direction.

THE MOMENTOUS parley was called to order by Acheson with a brief "meditation or prayer for peace."

The United States, backed fully by Great Britain and France, has made clear that the "Big Three" will not tolerate any filibustering or other delaying tactics on the part of the Russians.

They have learned to their dismay in previous conferences of the Kremlin's knack—it is more than that, it is a facility bordering on genius—to slow down the progress of negotiations by means that have a surface veneer of purest legality.

But despite a majority decision that speeches must be limited in length and the whole business of negotiations and treaty-signing be packed into a maximum of ten days, there is no apparent means by which they can prevent the Soviets from pulling something out of the hat.

There probably has been no one single period of peacetime in recent years so fraught with dangers, and conversely with hope of peaceful progress, than the present.

Washington has scheduled a meeting of top-flight importance among the three Western Powers to discuss two matters of urgent consideration.

ONE IS WEST Germany's present and eventual contributions to the defense of Europe against aggression. The other concerns ways and means of strengthening the Allied position in the Middle East, whose vulnerability was demonstrated so clearly by the oil crisis in Iran.

Soon afterward, the Western Powers will meet in Ottawa to solidify earlier agreements and go into the technical but vastly important details of financing the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the admission to it of Greece and Turkey.

Fire Department Radio Shunned

There will be no radio for Circleville fire department.

City council Tuesday turned in a unanimous "no" on a proposed ordinance to transfer $800 from the safety department's hose fund to a radio fund.

The transfer, if it had been permitted, would have allowed the purchase of two-way radio gear for the fire truck.

Fire Chief Talmer Wise said the gear was needed:

1. To summon city policemen to aid in traffic control during fires within the corporation.

2. To summon additional fire equipment in case the truck is on call outside the city limits.

Four Motorists Forfeit Bonds

Four men forfeited bonds totalling $110 Tuesday in Circleville mayor's court when failing to answer traffic law violations.

They were Glen McKinney, 25, of Lockbourne, $20 for alleged reckless operation; Paul S. Vest, 26, of Columbus, $50 for allegedly operating an auto with fictitious plates; Paul Swank, 39, of Columbus, and Robert Thieroff, 18, of New Bavaria, both $20 for alleged reckless operation.

Letter To The Editor

The Circleville Herald encourages letters to the editor on pertinent subjects of local interest. However, unsigned letters will be disregarded. Name and address will be used if requested.

Editor, The Herald:

The Mount of Praise Bible School in your city is now a reality, having successfully operated for three years, with the fourth year scheduled to open Sept. 11. Each year has marked an increase in the student body, with the prospect of a greater increase this year than in any year previous.

A number of these students need parttime employment and others who are not now planning to enter school would come if they had any assurance that they could find something to do that would help them through school. They do not ask for charity—just an opportunity.

While the greater portion of these students are yet in their teens, having graduated from high school within the past year or so, which, of course, has not given them sufficient time to learn a trade or to specialize in any particular line of work; still we find that some of them have had experience in dry goods stores, restaurants, ten-cent stores; one is an experienced meat cutter; some are office workers, and some of the older ones have worked in factories and on farms.

Classes will be so arranged that most of the afternoons and Saturdays will be free for those who have employment. Any consideration that these worthy young men and young women could be given will be greatly appreciated both by the students and the administration and faculty of the school.

Expenses for board, room, tuition, etc., have been placed at a very low figure, about on par with the price of just a single room.

The school will open Sept. 11, with a number of the students already coming in these few days in advance. Those interested may call the Mount of Praise Bible School, Phone 468-Y.

Burglars Enter 4 Places, But Take Nothing

Four Pickaway County business places were broken into early Tuesday by burglars who apparently left each place empty-handed.

Deputy Jack Dewey said the Sinclair filling station in Williamsport, the B and M restaurant on Jintown hill just west of Williamsport, Cozy Corners at Route 22 and 277 and Frazier's restaurant in New Holland were entered.

In each case, the business place was entered through a rear window. Owners of the places reported nothing was missing.

Dewey added, however, that more than $100 in merchandise was reported stolen from Melvin's restaurant in New Holland.

Ashville Lad May Get Break

A seven-year-old crippled Ashville boy may hear his letter read Wednesday evening on the television program, "Strike it Rich."

The boy is Ronald Lee Gloyd, son of Mrs. Violet Gloyd of 145 Scioto street, Ashville.

Officials of the CBS network, which carries the program, said that the letter probably will be read.

School Chieftain Worried Over Kiddie Safety

Pickaway County school officials were beginning to be uneasy Wednesday in view of carelessness of motorists when approaching school buses.

Robert D. Rider, 20, of New Plymouth, was fined $10 and costs Wednesday in the court of Magistrate Oscar Root for passing a school bus.

Rider passed a Deer Creek Township school bus near Williamsport while the bus was stopped to pick up a youngster. The accusation was filed by Oscar Atwood, driver of the bus.

The New Plymouth man was the second motorist to disregard a stopped school bus in as many days.

Another man was arrested Tuesday on the opening day of school here for passing a bus which was loading youngsters.

HIS CASE was continued, however, while registration of the auto he was driving was being checked.

"People don't seem to realize that our schools are in operation now," County Superintendent George D. McDowell said Wednesday.

"I would like to appeal to motorists to use caution when approaching stopped school buses which are loading or unloading."

The law reads that all motorists shall bring their vehicles to a stop not less than 10 feet from a school bus which is loading or unloading children.

Ashville Schools Open To Find Rooms Crowded

Ashville schools opened officially on Labor Day when teachers assembled for a meeting under the direction of their new superintendent, John Hardin. Following a joint meeting of elementary and high school teachers, separate meetings of the two groups were held.

Pupils returned to school for a half-day on Tuesday with assignments and distribution of supplies occupying most of the morning. Teachers found a record-breaking enrollment with 444 pupils being present for the opening day with a few pupils not yet reporting. The elementary school with 321 pupils exceeded its previous record-breaking attendance set in September, 1950, of 304 pupils.

With an enrollment of 57 the fourth grade was divided with Mrs. Eloise Hoover and Mrs. Delight Irwin taking charge of the two sections. Lawrence Fullen found it impossible to crowd his 46 seventh-graders into his room and plans were made to exchange sixth and seventh grade rooms to take care of the increased enrollment.

In the high school, freshmen with 45 enrollees topped the high school classes. Total high school enrollment was 123 with a few more pupils expected to report for classes later.

The crowded conditions of several grade rooms emphasizes the need for a building program for the school. In the high school the present study hall is inadequate for some periods of the day.

which he shook hands perfunctorily with President Truman and other guests, Gromyko asked Britain's Minister of State Kenneth Younger in a private conversation: "How long, in your opinion, will this conference last?" "It should be over by the end of the week," replied the British delegation chief, then boldly confronted the Soviet official with the question: "How long, Mr. Gromyko, do you think we will be here?" "At least a month!" was the startling answer from the 42-year-old Russian representative. Blinking in amazement, Younger, who had previously said he plans to leave San Francisco Monday night at the latest, remarked: "That seems rather a long time."

"TIME IS NOT important," Gromyko countered. "What is important is what we are going to accomplish here." The significant chat between Gromyko and Younger took place in a side room of the Palace Hotel garden terrace where the United States tendered the reception to delegates immediately after the formal launching of the conference with Mr. Truman's keynote speech. As Gromyko was about to leave the social affair, Philippine Foreign Secretary Carlos P. Romulo asked him jocularly: "When are you going to start the big fight?"

"That depends on what you mean by fight," the Russian answered with a straight face. "I am ready for it—what you call a fight—when I think the right moment has come."

Reporters buttonholed Gromyko as he left the garden terrace, urging him to reveal whether he intends to sign the Japanese peace pact. He told them: "I have nothing to say just yet about that. We shall see later."

Mr. Truman, meanwhile, made a few impromptu remarks to the diplomats at the reception. "When we have concluded this conference," he said, "we shall have taken a step forward toward peace."

AND PREVIOUSLY, the chief executive raised the curtain on the historic conference aimed to end the state of war with Japan and with a keynote address challenged Russia to demonstrate whether it seeks peace or war. To the assembled delegates sitting tense and silent on the red plush seats of the opera house, including Gromyko, Mr. Truman said the proposed treaty with Japan "thens more than talk of peace; it offers action for peace."

From the rostrum where the United Nations was born and dedicated six years ago, the President declared:

"This conference will show, therefore, who seeks to make peace and who seeks to prevent it; who wishes to put an end to war and who wishes to continue it."

The 26-minute address, televised across the United States in the first coast-to-coast hookup, was punctuated repeatedly by outbursts of applause. Gromyko sat poker-faced through the entire speech only 50 feet away from the President. Once or twice he turned his head slightly to look at Mr. Truman. He did not applaud him. On the other hand, the chief executive kept his attention riveted on delivery of his speech and did not glance in Gromyko's direction.

THE MOMENTOUS parley was called to order by Acheson with a brief "meditation or prayer for peace."

The United States, backed fully by Great Britain and France, has made clear that the "Big Three" will not tolerate any filibustering or other delaying tactics on the part of the Russians. They have learned to their dismay in previous conferences of the Kremlin's knack—it is more than that, it is a facility bordering on genius—to slow down the progress of negotiations by means that have a surface veneer of purest legality.

But despite a majority decision that speeches must be limited in length and the whole business of negotiations and treaty-signing be packed into a maximum of ten days, there is no apparent means by which they can prevent the Soviets from pulling something out of the hat.

There probably has been no one single period of peacetime in recent years so fraught with dangers, and conversely with hope of peaceful progress, than the present. Washington has scheduled a meeting of top-flight importance among the three Western Powers to discuss two matters of urgent consideration.

ONE IS WEST Germany's present and eventual contributions to the defense of Europe against aggression. The other concerns ways and means of strengthening the Allied position in the Middle East, whose vulnerability was demonstrated so clearly by the oil crisis in Iran.

Soon afterward, the Western Powers will meet in Ottawa to solidify earlier agreements and go into the technical but vastly important details of financing the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the admission to it of Greece and Turkey.

Fire Department Radio Shunned

There will be no radio for Circleville fire department.

City council Tuesday turned in a unanimous "no" on a proposed ordinance to transfer $800 from the safety department's hose fund to a radio fund.

The transfer, if it had been permitted, would have allowed the purchase of two-way radio gear for the fire truck.

Fire Chief Talmer Wise said the gear was needed:

1. To summon city policemen to aid in traffic control during fires within the corporation.
2. To summon additional fire equipment in case the truck is on call outside the city limits.

Four Motorists Forfeit Bonds

Four men forfeited bonds totalling $110 Tuesday in Circleville mayor's court when failing to answer traffic law violations. They were Glen McKinney, 25, of Lockbourne, $20 for alleged reckless operation; Paul S. Vest, 26, of Columbus, $50 for allegedly operating an auto with fictitious plates; Paul Swank, 39, of Columbus, and Robert Thieroff, 18, of New Bavaria, both $20 for alleged reckless operation.

Franklin School Janitor Named

Joseph Wilson of Circleville has been employed as janitor in Franklin Street elementary school building.

Wilson was employed Tuesday night by the Circleville board of education to replace Carl Porter, who resigned to join his brother in the laundry business.

Letter To The Editor

The Circleville Herald encourages letters to the editor on pertinent subjects of local interest. However, unsigned letters will be discarded. No duplicate will be used if requested.

Editor, The Herald:

The Mount of Praise Bible School in your city is now a reality, having successfully operated for three years, with the fourth year scheduled to open Sept. 11. Each year has marked an increase in the student body, with the prospect of a greater increase this year than in any year previous.

A number of these students need parttime employment and others who are not now planning to enter school would come if they had any assurance that they could find something to do that would help them through school. They do not ask for charity—just an opportunity.

While the greater portion of these students are yet in their teens, having graduated from high school within the past year or so, which, of course, has not given them sufficient time to learn a trade or to specialize in any particular line of work; still we find that some of them have had experience in dry goods stores, restaurants, ten-cent stores, one is an experienced meat cutter; some are office workers, and some of the older ones have worked in factories and on farms.

Classes will be so arranged that most of the afternoons and Saturdays will be free for those who have employment. Any consideration that these worthy young men and young women could be given will be greatly appreciated both by the students and the administration and faculty of the school.

Expenses for board, room, tuition, etc., have been placed at a very low figure, about on par with the price of just a single room.

The school will open Sept. 11, with a number of the students already coming in these few days in advance. Those interested may call the Mount of Praise Bible School, Phone 468-Y.

Burglars Enter 4 Places, But Take Nothing

Four Pickaway County business places were broken into early Tuesday by burglars who apparently left each place empty-handed.

Deputy Jack Dewey said the Sinclair filling station in Williamsport, the B and M restaurant on Jintown hill just west of Williamsport, Cozy Corners at Route 22 and 277 and Frazier's restaurant in New Holland were entered.

In each case, the business place was entered through a rear window. Owners of the places reported nothing was missing.

Dewey added, however, that more than $100 in merchandise was reported stolen from Melvin's restaurant in New Holland.

Ashville Lad May Get Break

A seven-year-old crippled Ashville boy may hear his letter read Wednesday evening on the television program, "Strike it Rich."

The boy is Ronald Lee Gloyd, son of Mrs. Violet Gloyd of 145 Scioto street, Ashville.

Officials of the CBS network, which carries the program, said that the letter probably will be read.

School Chieftain Worried Over Kiddie Safety

Pickaway County school officials were beginning to be uneasy Wednesday in view of carelessness of motorists when approaching school buses.

Robert D. Rider, 20, of New Plymouth, was fined $10 and costs Wednesday in the court of Magistrate Oscar Root for passing a school bus.

Rider passed a Deer Creek Township school bus near Williamsport while the bus was stopped to pick up a youngster. The accusation was filed by Oscar Atwood, driver of the bus.

The New Plymouth man was the second motorist to disregard a stopped school bus in as many days.

Another man was arrested Tuesday on the opening day of school here for passing a bus which was loading youngsters.

HIS CASE was continued, however, while registration of the auto he was driving was being checked.

"People don't seem to realize that our schools are in operation now," County Superintendent George D. McDowell said Wednesday.

"I would like to appeal to motorists to use caution when approaching stopped school buses which are loading or unloading."

The law reads that all motorists shall bring their vehicles to a stop not less than 10 feet from a school bus which is loading or unloading children.

Ashville Schools Open To Find Rooms Crowded

Ashville schools opened officially on Labor Day when teachers assembled for a meeting under the direction of their new superintendent, John Hardin. Following a joint meeting of elementary and high school teachers, separate meetings of the two groups were held.

Pupils returned to school for a half-day on Tuesday with assignments and distribution of supplies occupying most of the morning. Teachers found a record-breaking enrollment with 444 pupils being present for the opening day with a few pupils not yet reporting. The elementary school with 321 pupils exceeded its previous record-breaking attendance set in September, 1950, of 304 pupils.

With an enrollment of 57 the fourth grade was divided with Mrs. Eloise Hoover and Mrs. Delight Irwin taking charge of the two sections. Lawrence Fullen found it impossible to crowd his 46 seventh-graders into his room and plans were made to exchange sixth and seventh grade rooms to take care of the increased enrollment.

In the high school, freshmen with 45 enrollees topped the high school classes. Total high school enrollment was 123 with a few more pupils expected to report for classes later.

The crowded conditions of several grade rooms emphasizes the need for a building program for the school. In the high school the present study hall is inadequate for some periods of the day.

Traffic Cases Bring Fines For 2 Men

Two men were fined a total of $150 and costs Tuesday in the court of Magistrate Oscar Root for traffic violations.

Harold Baker, 33, of Ashville Route 2, was fined $50 and costs for being in actual physical control of his auto while drunk.

Baker was arrested on the Circleville-Lockbourne Road by Deputy Sheriff Jack Dewey.

Frank Sennett, 24, of Portsmouth, was fined $100 and costs in the court for reckless operation. Sennett was arrested by Deputy James Diltz early Tuesday following an accident in which Sennett's auto uprooted four mailboxes and clipped a telephone pole on Route 56 immediately east of Circleville. The court later suspended $50 of the fine.

treated for injuries suffered in an auto accident.

Mrs. David Stoer of Williamsport Route 1, entered Berger hospital Tuesday for surgery.

Jerry Davis, eight-year-old son of Mrs. Jesse Huffer of Amanda Route 2, was admitted to Berger hospital Tuesday as a medical patient.

Editors' Roundtable

"Editors' Roundtable" is a twice-a-week release based on a study of an average of about 150 daily newspaper editorial pages. The major issue of the day is analyzed and digested, passed on to readers as a survey of opinion from the nation's leading editors. It is the "voice of the press."

NEHRU AND THE WEST

Editors, in a considerable minority, argue that India's Prime Minister Nehru, in opposing the Japanese peace treaty, indicates no intention of joining forces with the Soviet conspiracy against world freedom. But a large minority sees in this latest Nehru move a question as to how much longer he can maintain a "neutrality" which more often than not favors Russia and Communism. And to a plurality of editors Nehru's misconception here of the purpose of American bases in the Pacific exposes his apparent belief that Western "imperialism" is more a threat to his "Asia for Asiatics" than is Russian Communism.

WISCONSIN State Journal (Ind.): "Nehru's long-mysterious policy of 'neutrality' between Russia and the West is nothing of the sort—He is directly aiding the Red aggressor—and he cannot help but know it—when he protests against treaty terms which give the United States control of the Ryuku and Bonin islands and at the same time insists that the treaty specifically recognize Russia's claim to South Sakhalin and the Kurile islands and Red China's claim to Formosa. Any pretense of 'neutrality' disappears when he demands American troops quit Japan—leaving it completely defenseless and wide open to Russian seizure."

LOUISVILLE Courier - Journal (Ind.-Dem.): "Nehru's objections to the treaty are not at all the same as those of Russia, which is completely hostile. He disagrees with the U. S. on three points. —But, according to The New York Times' correspondent in New Delhi, Nehru is not implacable on these points. — So long as the stationing of troops is not a part of the treaty, he has no objection to the U. S. negotiating with Japan on the issue. And, provided Japan's right to the islands over which we have assumed custody is conceded, he has no objection to our seeking a bi-lateral agreement for their continued protection."

CLEVELAND Plain Dealer (Ind.-Dem.): "That appeasement is—Nehru's policy is seen from his expressed regret that Formosa is not turned over to Communist China and that there is no written approval in the treaty of Russia's acquisition of the Kurile Islands and South Sakhalin. How many documents does Nehru want on these Russian gains? They were granted at Yalta, and Russia is in occupation. As to the subjugation of Japan which the Indian leader professes to see, the United States in reply quoted Japanese Prime Minister Yoshida to the effect that 'the treaty reflects abundantly American magnanimity and idealism.'"

NEW ORLEANS Times-Picayune (Ind.-Dem.): "It is doubtful if Nehru intended to join the Kremlin in its anti-Western campaign. The Indian prime minister got himself into this unfortunate situation of seeming to join forces with Russia by the same illogic and lack of good sense that he has displayed ever since the East-West struggle was intensified by war in Korea. — He apparently hopes to save India from Russian aggression by a kind of 'neutrality' that favors Moscow's policies."

SAN FRANCISCO Chronicle (Ind. Rep.): "In proposing that the United States move out of Japan, the Ryukyus and Bonin, but that Russia stay in the Kuriles and Sakhalin, Nehru is proposing that the United States hand over the balance of military power in that part of the Pacific to the Soviet Union. — This would cast a deep shadow over the chances for Democracy to survive in any part of the Orient, including Nehru's India. Nehru obviously believes otherwise; but it is hard to find a basis for his confidence in the benevolence of dictators in general and Stalin in particular."

PHILADELPHIA Bulletin (Ind.): "Nehru can have no delusions in regard to Soviet Russia. It gave him a humiliating rebuff in the matter of Tibet. Under Moscow's orders India's Communists are today trying to overthrow its government. — India is believed to have no objection to a bi-lateral arrangement with Japan as to American bases, provided it is severed from the general peace. Even in declining to go to San Francisco, India makes plain it does not want to break with the West or link itself with the Soviet conspiracy against world freedom."

BOSTON Herald (Ind.): "India is not gone yet—but her refusal to sign the Japanese treaty is a danger signal we cannot ignore —The East, as represented by

India, is so certain that Red China has no aggressive aims that it suspects our defensive line in the Ryukyus and the Bonins as something of the old Western attempt to dominate the East. There is great tragedy implicit in this failure of understanding. We should know by this time that it is hopeless to defend the East against Russian Communism if the East does not want to be defended by us."

Editors' Roundtable

"Editors' Roundtable" is a twice-a-week release based on a study of an average of about 150 daily newspaper editorial pages. The major issue of the day is analyzed and digested, passed on to readers as a survey of opinion from the nation's leading editors. It is the "voice of the press."

NEHRU AND THE WEST

Editors, in a considerable minority, argue that India's Prime Minister Nehru, in opposing the Japanese peace treaty, indicates no intention of joining forces with the Soviet conspiracy against world freedom. But a large minority sees in this latest Nehru move a question as to how much longer he can maintain a "neutrality" which more often than not favors Russia and Communism. And to a plurality of editors Nehru's misconception here of the purpose of American bases in the Pacific exposes his apparent belief that Western "imperialism" is more a threat to his "Asia for Asiatics" than is Russian Communism.

WISCONSIN State Journal (Ind.): "Nehru's long-mysterious policy of 'neutrality' between Russia and the West is nothing of the sort—He is directly aiding the Red aggressor—and he cannot help but know it—when he protests against treaty terms which give the United States control of the Ryuku and Bonin islands and at the same time insists that the treaty specifically recognize Russia's claim to South Sakhalin and the Kurile islands and Red China's claim to Formosa. Any pretense of 'neutrality' disappears when he demands American troops quit Japan—leaving it completely defenseless and wide open to Russian seizure."

LOUISVILLE Courier-Journal (Ind.-Dem.): "Nehru's objections to the treaty are not at all the same as those of Russia, which is completely hostile. He disagrees with the U. S. on three points. —But, according to The New York Times' correspondent in New Delhi, Nehru is not implacable on these points. — So long as the stationing of troops is not a part of the treaty, he has no objection to the U. S. negotiating with Japan on the issue. And, provided Japan's right to the islands over which we have assumed custody is conceded, he has no objection to our seeking a bi-lateral agreement for their continued protection."

CLEVELAND Plain Dealer (Ind.-Dem.): "That appeasement is—Nehru's policy is seen from his expressed regret that Formosa is not turned over to Communist China and that there is no written approval in the treaty of Russia's acquisition of the Kurile Islands and South Sakhalin. How many documents does Nehru want on these Russian gains? They were granted at Yalta, and Russia is in occupation. As to the subjugation of Japan which the Indian leader professes to see, the United States in reply quoted Japanese Prime Minister Yoshida to the effect that 'the treaty reflects abundantly American magnanimity and idealism.'"

NEW ORLEANS Times-Picayune (Ind.-Dem.): "It is doubtful if Nehru intended to join the Kremlin in its anti-Western campaign. The Indian prime minister got himself into this unfortunate situation of seeming to join forces with Russia by the same illogic and lack of good sense that he has displayed ever since the East-West struggle was intensified by war in Korea. — He apparently hopes to save India from Russian aggression by a kind of 'neutrality' that favors Moscow's policies."

SAN FRANCISCO Chronicle (Ind. Rep.): "In proposing that the United States move out of Japan, the Ryukyus and Bonin, but that Russia stay in the Kuriles and Sakhalin, Nehru is proposing that the United States hand over the balance of military power in that part of the Pacific to the Soviet Union. — This would cast a deep shadow over the chances for Democracy to survive in any part of the Orient, including Nehru's India. Nehru obviously believes otherwise; but it is hard to find a basis for his confidence in the benevolence of dictators in general and Stalin in particular."

PHILADELPHIA Bulletin (Ind.): "Nehru can have no delusions in regard to Soviet Russia. It gave him a humiliating rebuff in the matter of Tibet. Under Moscow's orders India's Communists are today trying to overthrow its government. — India is believed to have no objection to a bi-lateral arrangement with Japan as to American bases, provided it is severed from the general peace. Even in declining to go to San Francisco, India makes plain it does not want to break with the West or link itself with the Soviet conspiracy against world freedom."

BOSTON Herald (Ind.): "India is not gone yet—but her refusal to sign the Japanese treaty is a danger signal we cannot ignore. — The East, as represented by

India, is so certain that Red China has no aggressive aims that it suspects our defensive line in the Ryukyus and the Bonins as something of the old Western attempt to dominate the East. There is great tragedy implicit in this failure of understanding. We should know by this time that it is hopeless to defend the East against Russian Communism if the East does not want to be defended by us."

A WOMAN'S WORLD

GOVERNMENT experts, looking over the returns from the 1950 census, have discovered population and other trends which give a preview of the United States in the years ahead.

One of the most interesting deductions is that the United States is becoming more and more a woman's world. Women outnumber men for the first time in history, a situation which will continue during the years ahead because women outlive men by approximately five years, and few die in war.

More women are receiving the benefits of higher education, and more are going into positions of economic and cultural importance.

A record number of babies is expected to be brought into the world this year, exceeding the 3,900,000 born in 1947, following the last war. War brings marriages, and marriages bring babies, the bureau has discovered.

In the 10 years covered by the census the population increased 19,000,000, the largest 10-year increase in history.

Population trend continues to be toward the cities. Fewer persons are residing on farms. Rural citizens are now on a social and cultural level with city dwellers, and the so-called hayseed has disappeared.

Americans are living longer, getting divorces more frequently, having more children, and in various ways showing signs of being a vigorous if more modern people.

WAR MAY EXPAND

STEPPING up of the air war in Korea suggests what will happen if the truce fails. The Chinese have been building up their air strength and will expand their attacks. Then the U.S. will retaliate. It is scarcely a secret that the plans are laid to extend the bombing against vital Red centers in Manchuria. Thus the attack which General MacArthur recommended months ago would come true.

The Reds have been using their air strength in Korea to the limit. U.S. forces have been fighting in the air with one hand tied behind their backs to avoid provoking the Russians. MacArthur was so irritated about that, about being denied permission to use his strength against Red assembly points wherever they were to protect his fighting forces that he made his view public. For that he was dismissed.

The negotiations failing, the Reds will use the thousand or more planes they have accumulated during the talks and the additional tanks, big guns and troops they have brought in. The U.S., too, has built up its potential. Thus the war will expand anyhow and the months the U.S. might have used to counter the Red build-up will have been wasted.

These Days

George E. Sokolsky's

John Taber of New York has been a member of the House of Representatives about 30 years and is regarded as an extremely shrewd manipulator of figures. When the Republicans are in power, he looks after taxes and appropriations.

Norman Cousins is the editor of the Saturday Review of Literature, published for the intellectual elite.

The State Department sent Cousins to India to do propaganda for the United States in that country. It was a little difficult for anyone to know why, of all citizens, the State Department selected Cousins, who is not an expert on India or any such matter. Anyhow, Cousins got $4,550.92 for a 75-day trip, out of which he also got material for several articles in the Saturday Review of Literature, an interview with Nehru which may be worth something, if anybody is interested, and which is to come out as a $2 book.

So Taber asked the State Department what it was all about, sending a letter on May 11 and getting a reply on May 28, which is slow going for a public agency. Edward W. Barrett said in his reply that Cousins was the first American lecturer to be sent out to explain the United States to the ignorant, and that the State Department plans to send out some more such.

Taber was not satisfied because he could not find any reason for picking Cousins for such work. On June 1, he wrote Barrett again and got a reply on June 27. Taber wanted to see some of Cousins's speeches, but none was available as Cousins only spoke from notes and outlines.

Barrett apparently had forgotten the order of Dec. 6, 1950, on account of which General MacArthur was dismissed, the order forbidding any American official to discuss American policy without State Department approval. How can the State Department approve what does not exist?

So Taber wrote some more on July 5, which was answered on July 17, and again on July 11 and got an answer on July 19, which shows a greater speed.

Taber gave the dates because he wanted to say this:

"I cite this two-months' ordeal of trying to get answers to four letters from the State Department as an example of why the whole propaganda program which the State Department is running is a flop. It moves with the speed of molasses on a cold day in Maine. The Department of Public Affairs is so wound up in red tape, paper-pushing, memo-writing and bureaucracy that it is no wonder it gets nothing done."

Taber quotes from a newspaper in Colombo, Ceylon, to the effect that Cousins said:

"I believe that it is desperately necessary to have a worldwide government in which nations could maintain their own institutions, accepting a high sovereignty in matters concerned with the security of the people. The world federal government is the fastest growing movement in the United States."

Now, obviously, in the year 1951, none of this was accurate and the last sentence is highly exaggerated.

All of this amounts to nothing. What is important is that propaganda, as a weapon of war, is being badly handled by our government. Apparently, there is not only a lack of efficient direction but there seems to be no purpose. This is unfortunate at a time when Soviet Russia is so efficient in its use of propaganda devices. To summarize: Propaganda requires intelligent direction focussed on an objective.

TONTO RILEY

CHAPTER FORTY-FOUR

TONTO reached for the door, hesitated, then waited for more. He could hear faint footsteps as someone walked back and forth in the office. At last Bradley spoke again.

"You shouldn't have done it, Ad. Tonto Riley's no fool. He'll figure out who set that blaze, you can depend on it."

"And he'll place his chips on Bart Overby," Gilpin snapped. "I know what he'll think. Bart always was a fool and I took advantage of it. After that fight he had with Riley, who else would set the fire?"

"Bart will deny it."

"Riley won't believe him. Would you?" Gilpin said.

"No—no, maybe not. But what about Baddy? Two murders in one night. You're skating on thin ice, Ad. I don't like it. You shouldn't have done it. You can't bring a dead man back to life."

"Baddy knew too much and he'd seen too much. He started talking. Lucky I was the only one around. It sure opened my eyes to a heap of things, but I couldn't run the risk of the old coddler shooting his mouth to Riley. He had to go."

"If we could only have waited—"

Owen Bradley started but Gilpin's harsh voice cut in.

"Wait two years! Let Baddy tell what he knew! Let Bart Overby pull some fool trick and the whole thing blow up! Not for me. The Slash S has got to go to Bart. You know that, Owen. Once it's in his hands, you and me can go ahead as we planned."

"All right, all right. I still think you made a mistake, Ad, but we can't sit here all night talking about it. Go ahead as you've planned—but no more killing. We'll get together later when we find out what Riley's going to do. I'll keep a close check on Vic Ellers."

Tonto knew that in a matter of minutes the meeting would break up. There was still much he didn't know, but he had discovered the part the three men beyond the door had played in the loss of the cattle and Old Baddy's death. Tonto put his hand to the knob and swung open the door. His eyes squinted against the light. He stepped into the room.

"Round-up time," he said softly. "Let's read the brands."

The three men stared at him, open-mouthed.

Ad Gilpin sat at Owen Bradley's desk. He had swung half around as Tonto entered. Bradley stood by the windows, caught with his hands still clasped behind his back. Ken Frick lounged just beyond the desk, hat pushed back from his dark face. The three of them looked blank and stunned.

Tonto waited. He discounted Owen Bradley. Frick was the most dangerous of the three. Gilpin would let someone else make the first move. For a long, long moment the tension held. Then Tonto heard a soft jingle of spurs on the stairs in the hall. Someone was coming. He thought of Tex and then discarded that.

The jingle sounded again and the men in the room heard it. A gleam showed in Frick's eyes. Bradley slightly turned his head to listen. Tonto edged away from the door to protect his back from the newcomer.

His movement broke the tension. Frick's hands suddenly moved to ward his holster. Tonto reached for his gun, his hand blurring. He threw himself to one side, away from the door. Frick's slug smashed into the wall where Tonto had stood an instant before.

Tonto's six cleared leather and he snapped a shot at Frick, who jumped for the protection of the big roll-top desk. He and Bradley arrived together. Gilpin had shoved back from the desk as Frick made his play and Tonto glimpsed the move. Gilpin's hand brushed aside the skirt of his long coat, jerked upward. Lamplight glittered on the long barreled Colt as it dropped toward Tonto.

Again Tonto fired and he realized he hurried his shots. His slug made Gilpin flinch away and the saloon-keeper's shot went wild. Someone shouted in the hall but Tonto barely heard it. Gun thunder roared in his ears. Frick had swept Owen Bradley to one side, away from the desk. The attorney whimpered in fear as he scuttled on his hands and knees across the room, seeking something to hide behind. Frick's gun roared and Tonto felt a mauling blow on his side that whirled him half around. Gilpin's bullet whispered by his head, sent plaster flying.

Guns smoke stung Tonto's nostrils and made his eyes smart. Smoke filled the room so that the three men were uncertain, shifting shapes. But the orange-red flash of the guns was definite enough. Tonto went down on one knee, recovering himself. He sent two shots smashing toward Gilpin, heard the man crash into a chair.

Frick straightened, firing over the top of the desk, chest and head exposed. Tonto saw someone in the doorway but he could not be sure of the man's identity. His attention centered on Frick. Gilpin seemed to be out of the fight. Frick fired as fast as he could drop the hammer and it was incredible, at this short range, that he could miss.

Tonto gritted his teeth, lined his gun on the segundo and pulled the trigger. Frick dropped from sight and, at the same instant, Tonto's hat was whipped from his head. The newcomer in the doorway had taken a hand. Tonto twisted around. He glimpsed Bart Overby's set face over his gun sights and then the Colt bucked in his palm. Bart's slug burned along Tonto's thigh. He heard the gambler grunt as though someone had hit him. Then the man disappeared beyond the doorway.

Gun thunder still roared in Tonto's ears. Pain from his side swept over him in waves and he wanted to drop off into the swirling blackness that waited just beyond consciousness. He held on grimly, gun still tightly gripped. Neither Gilpin nor Frick had fired a shot in a matter of minutes now. The roaring left Tonto's ears and he heard Bradley's frightened mouthing from somewhere in the room. Someone shouted in the street and their boots pounded up the stairs.

Ottawa Atlantic Meeting
Seen Acheson Swan Song

Harriman Gets Mention
For Secretary of State

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Recent events convince many observers that Dean Acheson will retire as Secretary of State after the forthcoming Ottawa meeting of the North Atlantic Foreign Ministers Council. The popular assumption is that he will be replaced by W. Averell Harriman, former ambassador to London and Moscow and President Truman's personal envoy at the Iran conferences and in vital talks with Tito. In support of this theory, these factors are cited:

1—Acheson has appeared tired of late, though maintaining his calm, suave attitude.

2—Immediate pressures will be relieved after Acheson has fulfilled his duties at the San Francisco conference for signing the Japanese peace treaty and the Ottawa meeting.

3—Mr. Truman has gone overboard in his praise of Harriman for his work in Iran, even after the negotiations broke down.

It is generally accepted that Acheson wanted to quit months ago. But his loyalty to the President and his unwillingness to bow out under congressional fire made that impossible.

In Harriman's favor is the fact that Mr. Truman has relied on him increasingly of late to take over some of Acheson's activities.

Harriman has never been under heavy political fire and his party affiliations are as unknown as Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's. Moreover, he is independently wealthy and thus free of the pressure on Acheson to get back to a lucrative private law practice.

● WAGE TROUBLES—Wage Stabilization Board members say bad feeling has developed between the 18-man panel and Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston over formulation of wage control rules.

Board members have privately expressed indignation because Johnston has been "sitting" on a number of board regulations without passing them. All general wage control policies have to go to Johnston for approval, but the comment around the board is that Johnston has been very slow in acting on them.

In one case, which concerned rules for the payment of bonuses, the board grew tired of waiting on Johnston and announced the regulation itself. Previously the regulations were not made public without the economic stabilizer's approval.

● SHIP BILL—Six years after termination of World War II, the Navy is finally paying the last bills on the wartime construction of 100,000 vessels.

The total cost will amount to $22 billion. Liquidation of the last bills will wind up the World War II naval ship construction program. Capt. William H. Magruder, the Navy's fiscal director, advised the House military appropriations subcommittee that $45 million will be needed for this purpose.

He explained that the funds will be used to liquidate obligations charged against ships which are now in service and to pay delayed charges.

● NO STATEHOOD THIS YEAR—Alaskan and Hawaiian statehood bills will be shelved again this year by Congress in its rush to meet the adjournment target date of Oct. 1.

The "priority" legislative schedule drawn up by Senate leaders omits the statehood measures and that means they will just have to wait until the next session of Congress in 1952.

The Senate will be tied up for the remainder of its current session handling the tax increase bill, foreign aid and various appropriations measures.

Chances are fair that the two statehood bills may finally win approval next year. But they have stood a good chance for several years past only to be pushed aside in the drive toward adjournment.

Advocates of the two bills say they will renew their fight just as soon as the new session opens and hope to get the Hawaiian and Alaskan bills passed before they are again bypassed in the legislative rush.

It was a little difficult for anyone to know why, of all citizens, the State Department selected Cousins, who is not an expert on India or any such matter. Anyhow, Cousins got $4,550.92 for a 75-day trip, out of which he also got material for several articles in the Saturday Review of Literature, an interview with Nehru which may be worth something, if anybody is interested, and which is to come out as a $2 book.

So Taber asked the State Department what it was all about, sending a letter on May 11 and getting a reply on May 28, which is slow going for a public agency. Edward W. Barrett said in his reply that Cousins was the first American lecturer to be sent out to explain the United States to the ignorant, and that the State Department plans to send out some more such.

Taber was not satisfied because he could not find any reason for picking Cousins for such work. On June 1, he wrote Barrett again and got a reply on June 27. Taber wanted to see some of Cousins's speeches, but none was available as Cousins only spoke from notes and outlines.

Barrett apparently had forgotten the order of Dec. 6, 1950, on account of which General MacArthur was dismissed, the order forbidding any American official to discuss American policy without State Department approval. How can the State Department approve what does not exist?

So Taber wrote some more on July 5, which was answered on July 17, and again on July 11 and got an answer on July 19, which shows a greater speed.

Taber gave the dates because he wanted to say this:

"I cite this two-months' ordeal of trying to get answers to four letters from the State Department as an example of why the whole propaganda program which the State Department is running is a flop. It moves with the speed of molasses on a cold day in Maine. The Department of Public Affairs is so wound up in red tape, paper-pushing, memo-writing and bureaucracy that it is no wonder it gets nothing done."

Taber quotes from a newspaper in Colombo, Ceylon, to the effect that Cousins said:

"I believe that it is desperately necessary to have a worldwide government in which nations could maintain their own institutions, accepting a high sovereignty in matters concerned with the security of the people. The world federal government is the fastest growing movement in the United States."

Now, obviously, in the year 1951, none of this was accurate and the last sentence is highly exaggerated.

All of this amounts to nothing. What is important is that propaganda, as a weapon of war, is being badly handled by our government. Apparently, there is not only a lack of efficient direction but there seems to be no purpose. This is unfortunate at a time when Soviet Russia is so efficient in its use of propaganda devices. To summarize: Propaganda requires intelligent direction focussed on an objective.

CHAPTER FORTY-FOUR
TONTONTO reached for the door, hesitated, then waited for more. He could hear faint footsteps as someone walked back and forth in the office. At last Bradley spoke again.

"You shouldn't have done it, Ad. Tonto Riley's no fool. He'll figure out what that blaze, you can depend on it."

"And he'll place his chips on Bart Overby," Gilpin snapped. "I know what he'll think. Bart always was a fool and I took advantage of it. After that fight he had with Riley, who else would set the fire?"

"Bart will deny it," Riley would believe him. Would you?" Gilpin said.

"No—no, maybe not. But what about Baldy? Two murders in one night. You're skating on thin ice, Ad. I don't like it. You shouldn't have done it. You can't bring a dead man back to life."

"Baldy knew too much and he'd seen too much. He started talking. Lucky I was the only one around. It sure opened my eyes to a heap of things, but I couldn't run the risk of the old coger shooting his mouth to Riley. He had to go."

"If we could only have waited—" Owen Bradley started but Gilpin's harsh voice cut in.

"Wait two years! Let Baldy tell what he knew! Let Bart Overby pull some fool trick and the whole thing blow up! Not for me. The Slash S has got to go to Bart. You know that, Owen. Once it's in his hands, you and me can go ahead as we planned."

"All right, all right. I still think you made a mistake, Ad, but we can't sit here all night talking about it. Go ahead as you've planned—but no more killing. We'll get together later when we find out what Riley's going to do. I'll keep a close check on Vic Ellers."

Tonto knew that in a matter of minutes the meeting would break up. There was still much he didn't know, but he had discovered the part the three men beyond the door had played in the loss of the cattle and Old Baldy's death. Tonto put his hand to the knob and swung open the door. His eyes squinted against the light. He stepped into the room.

"Round-up time," he said softly. "Let's read the brands."

The three men stared at him, open-mouthed.

Ad Gilpin sat at Owen Bradley's desk. He had swung half around as Tonto entered. Bradley stood by the windows, caught with his hands still clasped behind his back. Ken Frick lounged just beyond the desk, hat pushed back from his dark face. The three of them looked blank and stunned.

Tonto waited. He discounted Owen Bradley. Frick was the most dangerous of the three. Gilpin would let someone else make the first move. For a long, long moment the tension held. Then Tonto heard a soft jingle of spurs on the stairs in the hall. Someone was coming. He thought of Tex and then discarded that.

The jingle sounded again and the men in the room heard it. A gleam showed in Frick's eyes. Bradley slightly turned his head to listen. Tonto edged away from the door to protect his back from the newcomer.

His movement broke the tension. Frick's hands suddenly moved toward his holster. Tonto reached for his gun, his hand blurring. He threw himself to one side, away from the door. Frick's slug smashed into the wall where Tonto had stood an instant before.

Tonto's six leathery and he snapped a shot at Frick, who jumped for the protection of the big roll-top desk. He and Bradley arrived together. Gilpin had shoved back from the desk as Frick made his play and Tonto glimpsed the move. Gilpin's hand brushed aside the skirt of his long coat, jerked upward. Lamplight glittered on the long barreled Colt as it dropped toward Tonto.

Again Tonto fired and he realized he hurried his shots. His slug made Gilpin flinch away and the saloon-keeper's shot went wild. Someone shouted in the hall but Tonto barely heard it. Gun thunder roared in his ears. Frick had swept open the door. His eyes squinted against the light. He stepped into the room.

"Round-up time," he said softly. "Let's read the brands."

The three men stared at him, open-mouthed.

Child Problems and Solutions

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, PhD

Suppose your child was not promoted last June but was assigned to repeat the grade he was in last year. He may have felt badly about the matter when his report card came home and you may have also.

But greater suffering may come to him on the first day at school this Fall. He may even be worrying about it now.

How awful it would be for this child if his parents were to increase his suffering. Fortunately the boy, eight years old, whose mother and principal wrote the following letters:

"This past year our son was in the third grade, and, due to below-average grades, we agreed with his teacher and principal to have him repeat the grade. (I am enclosing a letter from the principal which explains the reason for Danny's failure.)

"At the time that school closed he did not resent not passing, but as time draws nearer to going back, he has an 'I hate school' attitude and says he wishes he had passed. He says he knows all the children that were in the second grade and wonders what they will think of him staying in the third grade another year. Is there some way we can help him to overcome this feeling?"

AND HERE IS the principal's letter:

"Dear Mr. and Mrs. —: This is a long letter to write—because we love Danny so much. But, it is because of our love for him that we are so eager to help him.

"It has been very difficult for him this year to do the third-grade work. In fact, he has done it very poorly. We feel that if he were to go on to the fourth grade he would be absolutely lost and unhappy.

"Danny is a little immature, and an extra year in the third grade will give him a chance to grow socially, physically and mentally.

"We feel very confident that we are helping Danny by retaining him another year in the third grade, for this will give him a chance to get a better foundation for future school work.

"Danny lacks self-confidence and this next year will help build up confidence in himself, for he will be familiar with the work and will be able to do many things that the new third-graders will not. This leadership is something that will do a world of good for Danny.

"We are grateful to you for your splendid cooperation throughout the year."

I replied in about this way to that mother: I think I can understand how Danny feels about staying in the third grade another year. But after reading that very kind letter from your principal, it seems to have been a pretty wise decision.

It's wonderful that you so keenly sense the boy's feelings, too. There is danger that you might now suggest to him the decision you agreed to last June was a mistake.

EVEN IF YOU are sure it was, it is apparently too late to change it, and for you to stir up doubts in Danny's mind would only mean agony for him. Try to avoid discussing the matter further with him, but set the stage so he may be able to adapt himself to the ordeal and soon feel comfortable and enjoy successes in the third grade.

Do your utmost, you and Dad, to help him feel worthy at home especially during the next several weeks. Keep in touch with the teacher and principal, and if Danny does not seem to be gaining, consider the advisability of hiring a tutor to assist him with his lessons a few times a week.

I am enclosing in your self-addressed, stamped envelope my bulletins on home helps in reading, spelling, and arithmetic.

DiSalle's Aide Raps New Act

CLEVELAND, Sept. 5 — John McSweeney, special assistant to Price Stabilization Director Michael V. DiSalle, believes the Defense Production Act is almost impossible to administer because of new amendments.

McSweeney told a Labor Day crowd of more than 50,000 at an American Federation of Labor picnic at Geauga Lake Park that legislators should improve, not cripple, bills by amendment.

"We want a law that protects the earnings of our citizens," he said. "If inflation takes hold of our economy, we can't pass tax legislation in our cities, counties, states and in Washington to provide even the simplest necessities of our various governments."

GLs Are Left Holding Bag

BOSTON, Sept. 5 — A friendly stranger told three Airforce men, "share my room," when they were unable to find Labor Day lodgings in a Boston hotel.

The men, Cpl. Nobel Hayes and Pvt. John Sheedey and William Reddington, were glad to accept.

When they awoke, the stranger was gone. So were their wallets with $200.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Axe were honored Saturday evening with a dinner in their honor at the Pickaway Arms, Circleville. The dinner was attended by Walnut Township teachers. Axe, superintendent of the Walnut schools for three years, recently resigned to assume a similar position in the Yorkville schools. Axe was presented with a desk pen set. Following the dinner the group met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Judd Dresbach in Walnut Township. Considerable property damage and painful personal injury resulted from an auto accident on the street just north of the Ashville Community Park Sunday when a car driven by Walter Hoover, Ashville, collided with a tree stump just off the paved street. A Mr. Hale of Columbus, rider in the car, was painfully injured when his head struck the windshield and most of his face was forced through the glass. Hale was taken to Dr. L. C. Schiff who took some 37 stitches in closing the facial injuries. Hoover was driving west on the street when he allowed his car to swerve slightly to the right, striking a stump which was almost hidden by weeds.

Looking Ahead

By George Benson
President
Hardin College

An impassioned letter just received from the mother of two college-age sons has disturbed me deeply. "I have one son," she writes, "who attended both a church-supported school and a state college."

He came out of both schools believing there was something fundamentally wrong with the American way of life and that something must be done to remedy it.

Try as hard as I could I have not been able to erase these thoughts from his mind. If he had any teaching at all which would strengthen his faith in this country and help him appreciate it I could never tell it.

"I have another son who is now attending (a State teachers' college). Last year he had an atheist as his English teacher. This same teacher taught a book (name of book deleted—G.S.B.) the contents of which prompted my son to write a formal criticism of one of its essays." She sent me a copy of the criticism.

"This essay," wrote the son, "is the most frank and direct Communist propaganda that I have ever read. The very subject itself depicts the idea which the master mind of Communism has worked on for years. The over-all aim and purpose is to reduce modern civilization to the puppet stage. Modern man must be completely manageable. . .

"I CALL ATTENTION to the fact that many of the things which we cherish and enjoy as Americans are belittled and condemned herein. For instance, religion is labeled as having failed. Such statements appear as: 'Now just suppose that there were a God of the sort that you and I were taught about when we were children. . . ' The son continues his criticism pointedly: 'This essay as well as the book in which it appears is a disgrace to our nation. Our minds should not be corrupted with such Communist filth. If a country wishes to continue to exist, its children and youth must be taught appreciation of and love for that country.'

Every American college youth should learn all there is to know about Communism and Socialism—but not from an atheist who might try to convert the student to Socialism or some other collectivism that denies God and the worth of the individual. At Harding we have many textbooks on Communism and Socialism.

The professor's responsibility, we think, is to point out the consummate evil of Communism and the danger and weakness of Socialism.

We teach that the American way of life and the American economic system, while not perfect, are far superior to anything yet devised—based on the facts of history.

Benjamin H. Namm, Brooklyn business leader and chairman of the Board of Trustees of New York State Technical Institute, has reasonably suggested that "academic freedom" and "freedom of speech" entitle an American college to teach its students to be Socialists—if it makes its "mission" clearly evident, and its patrons are satisfied. His views were the subject of a recent Saturday Evening Post editorial.

"My major premise," says Mr. Namm, "is that all universities, schools and colleges should 'stand up and be counted.' If their mission is to teach Socialism, then so be it. Parents who want their children reared in that philosophy may then know what to expect. I believe that those institutions which prefer to remain 'neutral' and feel they have no 'mission' in life, should make this fact known to all of those who are properly concerned."

"MY MAIN CONCERN has to do with the university, college or secondary school which creates the false impression that it believes in, and teaches according to, the American way of life and then conveys to young and immature minds the ideas and ideals of an alien philosophy."

I believe, of course, that the great majority of American teachers are devoted to the American way of life. However, there are so many instances like those described by the mother who is concerned for her two sons that we must also recognize there is great danger in classrooms where teachers choose to undermine the fundamentals of our American way of life. With Mr. Namm, I feel strongly that the presence of such influences should be known to the parents.

Airforce Plans Damage Check On Shipments

DAYTON, Sept. 5.—The Airforce is going to "gimmick" shipments to find out just when and how damage occurs in transit.

The supply division of the Air Materiel Command has purchased 15 "impact recorders" which can masquerade as packages and jot down every jolt and bump of a freight car or truck.

The recorder is produced by the Impact-O-Graph Corp. of Cleveland. Contained in a metal case, nine inches square and five thick, the device can operate continuously by battery for 28 days.

A wax-coated tape gives a "play-by-play" description of every bump, when it occurred, its intensity and from where it came. The gadget even will show positioning of packages marked "this end up."

AMC is one of the world's biggest shippers and some of the recorders will go into military transport planes to check up on aerial transit. The remainder of the devices will be placed under laboratory experimentation to determine other possible uses.

It was noted by AMC that Impact-O-Graph might have a good psychological effect, from the shippers' viewpoint, on truck drivers and handlers.

Ohio GOP Set For Campaign

The program will run into the following month with a meeting Oct. 8 in Columbus of the Ohio Federation of Republican Women's Organizations.

The son continues his criticism pointedly: 'This essay as well as the book in which it appears is a disgrace to our nation. Our minds should not be corrupted with such Communist filth. If a country wishes to continue to exist, its children and youth must be taught appreciation of and love for that country.'

Every American college youth should learn all there is to know about Communism and Socialism—but not from an atheist who might try to convert the student to Socialism or some other collectivism that denies God and the worth of the individual. At Harding we have many textbooks on Communism and Socialism.

The professor's responsibility, we think, is to point out the consummate evil of Communism and the danger and weakness of Socialism.

We teach that the American way of life and the American economic system, while not perfect, are far superior to anything yet devised—based on the facts of history.

Benjamin H. Namm, Brooklyn business leader and chairman of the Board of Trustees of New York State Technical Institute, has reasonably suggested that "academic freedom" and "freedom of speech" entitle an American college to teach its students to be Socialists—if it makes its "mission" clearly evident, and its patrons are satisfied. His views were the subject of a recent Saturday Evening Post editorial.

"My major premise," says Mr. Namm, "is that all universities, schools and colleges should 'stand up and be counted.' If their mission is to teach Socialism, then so be it. Parents who want their children reared in that philosophy may then know what to expect. I believe that those institutions which prefer to remain 'neutral' and feel they have no 'mission' in life, should make this fact known to all of those who are properly concerned."

"MY MAIN CONCERN has to do with the university, college or secondary school which creates the false impression that it believes in, and teaches according to, the American way of life and then conveys to young and immature minds the ideas and ideals of an alien philosophy."

I believe, of course, that the great majority of American teachers are devoted to the American way of life. However, there are so many instances like those described by the mother who is concerned for her two sons that we must also recognize there is great danger in classrooms where teachers choose to undermine the fundamentals of our American way of life. With Mr. Namm, I feel strongly that the presence of such influences should be known to the parents.

Airforce Plans Damage Check On Shipments

DAYTON, Sept. 5—The Airforce is going to "gimmick" shipments to find out just when and how damage occurs in transit.

The supply division of the Air Materiel Command has purchased 15 "impact recorders" which can masquerade as packages and jot down every jolt and bump of a freight car or truck.

The recorder is produced by the Impact-O-Graph Corp. of Cleveland. Contained in a metal case, nine inches square and five thick, the device can operate continuously by battery for 28 days.

A wax-coated tape gives a "play-by-play" description of every bump, when it occurred, its intensity and from where it came. The gadget even will show positioning of packages marked "this end up."

AMC is one of the world's biggest shippers and some of the recorders will go into military transport planes to check up on aerial transit. The remainder of the devices will be placed under laboratory experimentation to determine other possible uses.

It was noted by AMC that Impact-O-Graph might have a good psychological effect, from the shippers' viewpoint, on truck drivers and handlers.

Ohio GOP Set For Campaign

COLUMBUS, Sept. 5—The Republican Party of Ohio plans to arm itself early for the 1952 political battle.

State Chairman Ray C. Bliss said meetings have been arranged for September with incumbent GOP office holders, 88-county chairwomen, and a series of district conclaves with county chairmen.

The program will run into the following month with a meeting Oct. 8 in Columbus of the Ohio Federation of Republican Women's Organizations.

Peiping Reports Catholic Cleric

HONG KONG, Sept. 5—The Chinese Communist radio in Peiping announced today that the military control commission in Nanking has ordered the deportation of the papal nuncio, Archbishop Antonio Riberi.

The radio said the step was taken in "deference to the public demand" and in the interest of national security.

Man Shouldn't Shoot Craps Even With Mother

CAMP ATTERBURY, Ind., Sept. 5—Dice is a game that a man shouldn't even play with his mother, according to P. V. Tim Mulroy, who has one of the most unusual jobs in the U.S. Army.

Mulroy, a professional magician and card trick artist before the Army tapped him, is an instructor for a course in gambling being given at Camp Atterbury. This intriguing addition to the Army's basic training program at the camp is designed to teach the boys that gambling doesn't pay.

Mulroy tells the students in his classes how to spot a professional gambler. He explains the different ways by which gamblers may cheat to win in poker, blackjack and gin. When it comes to shooting craps, the instructor declares:

"It's the most ridiculous game of them all. A man shouldn't even play with his mother. The odds against rolling a seven the first time are 35 to one."

Mulroy advised the soldiers to watch how a player holds the deck of cards when dealing if they wish to spot a professional.

"A professional gambler holds his index finger on top of the deck when he deals. It's necessary for him to do this so that he can deal the way he wants. But it's an uncomfortable way to deal. An amateur's index finger remains at the side of the deck when he deals. It's the natural way to hold a deck."

Mulroy also advises his class to cut a deck of cards into three stacks in order to upset a set deck.

FBI Chieftain Urges Reports On Any Sabotage

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5—FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover has warned that Communist saboteurs may attempt to cripple the U.S. mobilization effort by starting fires or touching off explosions in industrial plants.

Hoover asked cooperation from municipal, county and state law enforcement officers throughout the nation in combating the menace of the Red saboteur.

The FBI chief, in a special message to all law enforcement officials, issued through his bureau's monthly bulletin, noted also that such cooperation can discourage hysteria and quash false rumors. Hoover declared:

"In this period of concerted mobilization of our national resources, the significance of fires and explosions, such as those which marked increased industrial production in World War II, must be immediately determined."

"When such disasters are of unusual or unexplained origin, and affect any phase of the national defense program, they should be reported immediately and directly to the FBI."

Physical Ed Building Plans Being Readied

Final plans and specifications for the proposed new $475,000 physical education building are expected to be ready within the next two weeks for approval by the Circleville board of education.

Architect F. F. Glass of Columbus told the city educators Tuesday night that only a few technical adjustments are needed to make the plans for the new building complete.

The board is expected to meet with its architect during the next two weeks to give final approval to the plans and make ready to advertise for bids.

However, the panel added that it probably will not seal bids for the proposed building program until it receives approval from the government. The panel applied for permission to build more than a month ago, but still has not received a reply as to whether the building program will be approved.

Buyers To Get Added Time To Move Buildings

Prospective buyers of the five East Mill street houses to be offered for sale Saturday by the Circleville board of education have been granted an extension of time after purchase for removal of the buildings.

Acting upon advice of Auctioneer Clayt Chalfin, the panel Tuesday extended the time for removing the houses to 60 days following sale. Formerly the time limit was 30 days.

Chalfin informed the panel that he had been contacted by several prospective buyers who thought the 30-day period was too short for all five houses to be moved.

Sale of the properties at the sites will begin at 2 p. m. Saturday.

"We could send a lot of repair business there to supplement work being done in that country by the Economic Cooperation Administration."
